1. [redacted] telephoned to say that Mr. [redacted] had called from [redacted] and indicated that he was forwarding us a check in the amount of $1450 which, it is estimated, should satisfy his indebtedness to the Agency. I approved of this and told Fred that after we had determined the exact status of this account we could notify Mr. [redacted] of the final settlement and either ask for additional reimbursement, which should be small, or, if appropriate, pay him whatever we may owe him.

2. Harry Reynolds and [redacted] telephoned to say that the WH Division wanted to use a General [redacted] for about two weeks and were requesting the Special Contracting Officer to write a contract which would permit the General to take a trip, accompanied by his wife, at our expense. Told Harry and John that I would not approve of this contract unless the WH Division convinced me of the operational necessity for Mrs. [redacted] going along. (They had discussed the matter with the General Counsel who took a very dim view of it; Harry was also strongly opposed.)

3. [redacted] telephoned to say that there was a cable in from [redacted] involving [redacted] construction and the purchasing of certain furniture, etc., which, altogether, would probably entail an expenditure of an additional $500,000 in that area. He asked for advice as to how to get the additional authorization. I suggested that he wrap up the requests into one package, get the concurrence of the Logistics Office, and forward it either to me or through me to the Director.

6. Received a report from the Logistics Office on the proposed move of the Office of Operations to Barton Hall with subsequent move to Quarters Eye. Have

7. Told [REDACTED] that I was afraid we no longer had a place for [REDACTED] and that I was also fearful that Sam was going to get his feelings hurt before his separation was effected. [REDACTED] agreed to get in touch with him and to swing his resignation.
